2. Excluded by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication).

3. Acts of Parliament signed by the President of the Republic, as well as acts of the President adopted on the initiative of the Government, shall be preliminarily authenticated by the signature of the Chairman of each Chamber of Parliament or the Prime Minister, who shall be legally responsible for the legality of such acts.

Footnote. See Resolutions of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 15/2 of 3 July 2000; No. 5 of 26 June 2008.

Footnote. See Article 45 as amended by Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication).

Article 46

1. The President of the Republic of Kazakhstan, his or her honour and dignity shall be inviolable.
2. The President of the Republic and his or her family shall be boarded, lodged and guarded at the expense of the state.
3. The provisions of this Article shall apply to ex-Presidents of the Republic.
4. Excluded by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 8 June 2022).

Footnote. Article 46 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 8 June 2022).

Article 47

1. The President of the Republic of Kazakhstan may be removed from office prematurely if he or she is permanently incapable of performing his or her duties due to illness. In this case, the Parliament shall form a commission consisting of an equal number of deputies from each Chamber and specialists in the relevant medical fields. The decision to remove the President from office prematurely shall be taken at a joint session of the Chambers of Parliament by a majority of at least three quarters of the total number of members of each Chamber, on the basis of the opinion of the Commission and of the Constitutional Council on compliance with the established constitutional procedures.
2. The President of the Republic shall be responsible for actions taken in the performance of his/her duties and may be removed from office by the Parliament only in the case of high treason. The decision to impeach and investigate may be taken by a majority of Mazhilis deputies on the initiative of at least one third of the total number of deputies. The investigation of the accusation shall be organised by the Senate, and its results shall be submitted for consideration to a joint session of the Chambers of Parliament by a majority of the total number of deputies of the Senate. The final decision on the matter shall be taken by a joint session of the Chambers of Parliament by a majority of at least three quarters of the total number of members of each Chamber, provided that the Supreme Court has ruled on the validity of the impeachment and on the conclusion of the Constitutional Council as to compliance with the established constitutional procedures. In the absence of a final decision within two months from the date of the impeachment, the impeachment of the President of the Republic shall be deemed to have been rejected.

The rejection of the charge of high treason against the President of the Republic at any stage shall result in the early termination of the powers of the Mazhilis deputies who initiated the consideration of this issue.

3. The question of the impeachment of the President of the Republic shall not be raised during the period of consideration of the question of the early termination of the powers of the Parliament of the Republic or of the Mazhilis of the Parliament.

Footnote. Article 47 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); of 08 June 2022 (in force from 01 January 2023).

Article 48

1. In case of early removal or impeachment of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan, as well as in case of his or her death, the powers of the President of the Republic for the remaining term of office shall be transferred to the Chairman of the Senate of the Parliament; if the Chairman of the Senate is not able to assume the powers of the President, they shall be transferred to the Chairman of the Mazhilis of the Parliament; if the Chairman of the Mazhilis is not able to assume the powers of the President, they shall be transferred to the Prime Minister of the Republic. A person who has assumed the powers of the President of the Republic shall relinquish the powers of the Chairman of the Senate, the Chairman of the Mazhilis and the Prime Minister. In such a case, the vacant public offices shall be filled in the manner prescribed by the Constitution.

2. A person who has assumed the powers of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan on the grounds and in the manner provided for in paragraph 1 of this Article shall not have the right to introduce amendments and additions to the Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Footnote. Article 48 as amended by Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 284-I of 7 October 1998 (in force from the date of its publication).

Section IV

Parliament

Article 49

1. The Parliament of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall be the highest representative body of the Republic exercising legislative power.

2. The powers of the Parliament shall begin with the opening of its first session and shall end with the first session of the Parliament of a new convocation.

3. The powers of Parliament may be terminated prematurely in the cases and under the conditions established by the Constitution.

4. The Constitution shall regulate the organisation and functioning of Parliament and the legal status of its deputies.

Footnote. See Resolution No. 13/2 of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 14 July 1999.

Footnote. Article 49 as amended by Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 284-I of 7 October 1998 (in force from the date of its publication); No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication).

Article 50

1. The Parliament shall consist of two Chambers: the Senate and the Mazhilis, which shall be permanent.

2. The Senate shall be composed of deputies representing, in accordance with the procedure established by constitutional law, two deputies from each region, city of republican importance and the capital of the Republic of Kazakhstan. Ten deputies of the Senate shall be appointed by the President of the Republic, five of whom shall be appointed on the proposal of the Assembly of People of Kazakhstan.

3. The Mazhilis shall be composed of ninety-eight deputies elected in accordance with the procedure established by the constitutional law under a mixed electoral system: proportional representation on the territory of a single nationwide constituency and single-mandate territorial constituencies.

4. A deputy of Parliament may not be a member of both Chambers at the same time.

5. The term of office of the deputies of the Senate shall be six years, and that of the deputies of the Mazhilis shall be five years.

Footnote. See Resolutions of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 1/2 of 15 March 1999; No. 24/2 of 29 November 1999; No. 1 of 11 February 2003; No. 1 of 12 February 2004.

Footnote. Article 50 as amended by Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 284-I of 7 October 1998 (in force from the date of its publication); No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 8 June 2022).

Article 51

1. Elections of Mazhilis deputies shall be held on the basis of universal, equal and direct suffrage by secret ballot. The next election of Mazhilis deputies shall be held no later than two months before the end of the term of the current convocation of Parliament.

2. The deputies of the Senate shall be elected by indirect suffrage, by secret ballot. Half of the elected deputies of the Senate shall be subject to re-election every three years. In this case, their ordinary election shall take place not later than two months before the expiry of their term of office.

3. Extraordinary elections of deputies of Parliament or Mazhilis of Parliament shall be held within two months of the day of the early termination of the powers of Parliament or Mazhilis of Parliament.

4. A deputy of the Parliament may be a person who is a citizen of the Republic of Kazakhstan and who has been a permanent resident of the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan for ten years. A deputy of the Senate may be a person who has reached the age of thirty, has a higher education, has been in service for at least five years and has been a permanent resident of the respective region, city of republican importance or the capital of the republic for at least three years. A Mazhilis deputy may be a person who has reached the age of twenty-five.

5. The constitutional law shall regulate the election of deputies to the Parliament of the Republic.

6. A deputy of the Parliament shall take an oath before the people of Kazakhstan.

Footnote. See Resolutions of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 5/2 of 18 March 1999; No. 24/2 of 29 November 1999; No. 1 of 11 February 2003.

Article 52

1. Excluded by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication).

2. Deputies shall be obliged to participate in the work of the Parliament. A deputy may vote in Parliament only in person. Absence of a deputy from sessions of the Chambers and their bodies more than three times without a clear reason, as well as the transfer of the right to vote, shall entail the application of legal sanctions to the deputy.

3. A deputy of Parliament shall not have the right to be a member of any other representative body, to hold any other paid position, except for teaching, scientific and creative activities, to engage in entrepreneurial activities, to be a member of a governing body or a supervisory board of a commercial organisation. Any breach of this rule shall result in the termination of the mandate of the deputy.

4. A deputy of Parliament may not, during his or her term of office, be arrested, detained, subjected to measures of administrative sanction imposed by a court or charged with a criminal offence without the consent of a competent Chamber, except in cases of arrest at the scene of a crime or in cases of the commission of serious crimes.

5. The powers of a deputy of Parliament shall cease in the event of resignation, death, being declared incompetent, dead or untraceable by a final court decision, and in other cases provided for by the Constitution and by constitutional law.

A deputy of Parliament shall be deprived of his or her mandate in the following cases:

- 1) departure for permanent residence outside the Republic of Kazakhstan;
- 2) entry into force of a conviction pronounced against him/her by a court of law;
- 3) loss of citizenship of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

A deputy of the Mazhilis of the Parliament shall lose his or her mandate in the case of:

- 1) withdrawal or expulsion of a deputy from a political party from which he/she was elected on the basis of a party list in accordance with the constitutional law;
- 2) termination of the activities of a political party from which a deputy was elected on the basis of a party list in accordance with constitutional law;
- 3) recall of a deputy elected in a single-mandate territorial constituency by the electorate in the manner established by constitutional law.

The powers of appointed deputies of the Senate of Parliament may be terminated prematurely by decision of the President of the Republic.

The powers of deputies of Parliament and Mazhilis of Parliament shall be terminated prematurely in the event of dissolution of Parliament or Mazhilis of Parliament.

6. The Central Election Commission of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall prepare the issues concerning the application of punitive measures to deputies, their compliance with the requirements of paragraph 3 of this Article, the rules of ethics of deputies, as well as the termination of the powers of deputies and deprivation of their powers and inviolability of deputies.

Article 53

Parliament in a joint session of the Chambers shall:

1) introduce amendments and additions to the Constitution on the proposal of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan;

1-1) adopt constitutional laws;

1-2) repeated discussion and voting on constitutional laws or articles of a constitutional law to which the President of the Republic has raised objections within one month from the day of sending the objections. Failure to meet this deadline shall constitute acceptance of the President's objections. If Parliament overrules the President's objections by a majority of three quarters of the total number of members of each Chamber, the President shall sign the constitutional law within one month. If the President's objections are not overruled, the constitutional law shall be deemed not to have been adopted or to have been adopted in the text proposed by the President;

2) approve the reports of the Government and the Accounts Committee for Control over Implementation of Republican Budget on the implementation of the national budget. Failure to approve the report of the Government on the execution of the Republican Budget by Parliament means that the Parliament expresses a vote of no confidence in the Government;

3) Excluded by Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication).

4) take decisions on matters of war and peace;

5) decide on the deployment of the Armed Forces of the Republic, on the proposal of the President of the Republic, in order to fulfil international obligations for the maintenance of peace and security;

6) hear the annual reports of the Constitutional Court on the state of constitutional legality in the Republic;

7) establish joint commissions of the Chambers, elect and dismiss their chairmen and hear reports on the activities of the commissions;

8) exercise other powers conferred on Parliament by the Constitution.

Footnote. See Normative Resolution No. 5 of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 26 June 2008.

Footnote. Article 53 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication); of 8 June 2022 (see Article 3 for adoption procedure).

Article 54

1. The Parliament shall pass laws in separate sessions of the Chambers by sequential consideration of issues, first in the Mazhilis and then in the Senate, including:
 - 1) approving the national budget and making amendments and additions thereto;
 - 2) fixing and cancelling state taxes and dues;
 - 3) establish rules for resolving issues related to the administrative and territorial structure of the Republic of Kazakhstan;
 - 4) establish state awards, honorary, military and other titles, ranked positions, diplomatic ranks of the Republic of Kazakhstan, as well as state symbols of the Republic;
 - 5) settle questions of state loans, economic and other assistance provided by the Republic of Kazakhstan;
 - 6) settle questions of amnesty;
 - 7) ratify and denounce international treaties of the Republic.
2. Parliament shall, in a separate session of the Chambers, by successive consideration first in the Mazhilis and then in the Senate, consider:
 - 1) the report on the national budget;
 - 2) the laws or articles of law to which the President of the Republic has raised objections, within one month of the date on which the objections were sent. Failure to meet this deadline shall be deemed acceptance of the President's objections. If the Mazhilis and the Senate, by a two-thirds majority of the total number of deputies in each Chamber, overrule the President's objections, the President shall sign the bill into law within one month. If the objections of the President are not overruled by at least one of the Chambers, the law shall be deemed not to have been adopted or to have been adopted in the wording proposed by the President;
 - 3) initiate the republican referendum.

Footnote. See Normative Resolution No. 8 of the Constitutional Council of 15 October 2008.

Footnote. Article 54 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 08 June 2022 provides for a new edition (entered into force on 1 January 2023).

Article 55

The Senate shall have the following exclusive powers:

1) election and dismissal of the Chairman of the Supreme Court and judges of the Supreme Court of the Republic of Kazakhstan on the recommendation of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan, as well as their swearing in;

1-1) election of the Human Rights Commissioner in Kazakhstan for a term of five years and his or her dismissal from office on the recommendation of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan;

2) approval of the appointment by the President of the Republic of the Chairman of the Constitutional Court, the Governor of the National Bank, the Chairman of the Supreme Judicial Council, the Prosecutor General, the Chairman of the National Security Committee of the Republic;

3) deprivation of immunity of the Prosecutor General, the Chairman and Judges of the Supreme Court of the Republic, the Human Rights Commissioner of the Republic of Kazakhstan;

4) Excluded by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication);

5) to perform the functions of Parliament in adopting constitutional and other laws during the temporary absence of the Mazhilis caused by the early termination of its powers;

6) to exercise other powers conferred on the Senate by the Constitution.

Footnote. See Resolution No. 11/2 of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 5 July 2000.

Article 56

1. The Mazhilis shall have exclusive competence in the following matters:

1) to approve for consideration the draft constitutional and other laws submitted to Parliament;

2) to approve, by a majority of the total number of deputies in the Chamber, the nominee of the President for the post of Prime Minister;

3) to proclaim the regular election of the President of the Republic;

3-1) to hear the report of the President of the Supreme Audit Chamber twice a year;

4) to exercise other powers vested in the Mazhilis by the Constitution.

2. On the proposal of at least one-fifth of its total membership, the Mazhilis shall have the right to pass a vote of no confidence in the Government by a simple majority of its total membership.

Footnote. Article 56 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 8 June 2022 (see Article 3 for adoption procedure).

Article 57

Each Chamber of Parliament, independently and without the participation of the other, shall appoint:

- 1) three judges of the Constitutional Court; two members of the Central Election Commission for a term of five years; and three members of the Supreme Audit Chamber;
- 2) appoint half of the members of the Commission formed by Parliament in the case provided for in Article 47(1) of the Constitution;
- 3) to elect half the members of the joint commissions of the Chambers;
- 4) to terminate the powers of deputies of the Chambers and, on the recommendation of the Prosecutor General of the Republic of Kazakhstan, to resolve the issues of waiving their immunity;
- 5) to hold parliamentary hearings on the issues of its competence;
- 6) have the right, on the initiative of at least one third of the total number of members, to hear the reports of the Government on its performance. After the hearings, a majority of at least two-thirds of the total membership of the Chamber is entitled to accept the request of the President of the Republic to remove from office the member of the Government who has failed to comply with the laws of the Republic. The President then removes the member from office.
- 7) establish the coordination and working bodies of the Chambers; and
- 8) adopt regulations governing their activities, other decisions concerning the structure of the Chambers and the internal code of conduct.

Footnote. Article 57 as amended by Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 284-I of 7 October 1998 (in force from the date of its publication); No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication); of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 8 June 2022).

Article 58

1. The Chambers shall be presided over by their chairmen, who shall be elected by the Senate and the Mazhilis from among the deputies fluent in the state language by secret ballot by the majority of the total number of deputies. The Chairman of the Senate shall be appointed by the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan. The Chairman of the Mazhilis shall be appointed by the deputies of the Chamber.

2. The Chairmen of the Chambers may be removed from office and submit their resignation by a majority vote of the Chambers.

3. The Chairmen of the Chambers of Parliament shall:

- 1) convene and preside over the meetings of the Chambers;
- 2) exercise general supervision over matters to be considered by the Chambers;
- 3) appoint the Deputy Chairs of the Chambers;
- 4) ensure compliance with the Rules of Procedure in the work of the Chambers;
- 5) supervise the work of the coordination bodies of the Chambers; and;
- 6) sign the minutes of the Chambers;
- 7) recommend to the Chambers candidates for appointment as judges of the Constitutional Court, members of the Central Election Commission and members of the Supreme Audit Chamber;
- 8) perform other duties assigned to them by the Rules of Procedure of Parliament.

4. The Chairman of the Mazhilis shall:

- 1) open the sessions of Parliament;
- 2) convene ordinary joint sessions of the Chambers and preside over ordinary and extraordinary joint sessions of the Chambers.

5. The Chairmen of the Chambers shall issue instructions on matters within their competence.

Footnote. Article 58 as amended by Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 8 June 2022).

Article 59

1. Parliament shall sit in joint and separate Chambers.

2. The President of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall convene the first session not later than thirty days after the announcement of the election results.

3. Ordinary sessions of Parliament shall be held once a year from the first working day of September to the last working day of June.

4. As a rule, the session of Parliament shall be opened by the President of the Republic and closed at joint sessions of the Senate and the Mazhilis. During the inter-session period, the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall have the right to convene an extraordinary session of Parliament, either on his or her own initiative or on the proposal of one of the chairmen or at least one third of the total number of deputies of Parliament. At such a session only the matters which were the reason for the convocation shall be considered.

5. Joint and separate sessions of the Chambers shall be held when at least two-thirds of the total number of members of each Chamber are present.

6. Joint and separate sessions of the Chambers shall be open to the public. If the rules so provide, the session may be held in camera. The President of the Republic, the Prime Minister and members of the Government, the Governor of the National Bank, the Prosecutor General and the Chairman of the National Security Committee shall have the right to be present and to be heard at any session.

Footnote. See Resolutions of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 14/2 of 30 June 1999; No. 13/2 of 14 July 1999.

Footnote. Article 59 as amended by Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication).

Article 60

1. Each Chamber shall set up standing committees consisting of at least seven members.

2. The Senate and the Mazhilis shall have the right to set up joint commissions in equal numbers to deal with matters relating to their joint activities.

3. The committees and commissions shall pass resolutions on matters within their competence.

4. The procedure for the establishment of such commissions, their powers and working methods shall be regulated by statute.

Article 61

1. The President of the Republic, the members of Parliament and the Government shall have the right of legislative initiative, which shall be exercised only in the Mazhilis.

2. The President of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall have the right to determine the priority of consideration of bills, which means that the bill shall be adopted as a matter of urgency within two months.

Bills introduced on the legislative initiative of the Government of the Republic for immediate response to conditions threatening the life and health of the population, constitutional order, protection of public order and economic security of the country shall be immediately considered by the Parliament in a joint session of its Chambers.

3. Parliament shall have the right to enact laws regulating the main public relations and establishing fundamental principles and norms relating to:

- 1) the legal capacity of natural and legal persons, civil liberties and rights, and the duties and responsibilities of natural and legal persons;
- 2) the system of ownership and other property rights;
- 3) the principles governing the organisation and functioning of central and local government and military and civilian service;
- 4) taxation and the collection of fees and other compulsory charges;
- 5) the republican budget;
- 6) matters relating to the judicial system and legal proceedings;
- 7) education, health and social services;
- 8) privatisation of enterprises and their property;
- 9) environmental protection;
- 10) the administrative and territorial structure of the Republic;
- 11) national defence and security.

All other matters are regulated by local statutes.

In the case of bills submitted to Parliament in accordance with the second part of paragraph 2 of this Article, the Government of the Republic shall have the right to issue on its own temporary regulatory acts with the force of law on the matters specified in the first part of this paragraph, which shall be valid until the bills adopted by Parliament enter into force or until Parliament fails to adopt the bills.

4. A law adopted by a majority of the total number of deputies of the Mazhilis shall be submitted to the Senate, where it shall be considered for a maximum period of sixty days.

The Mazhilis as a whole has the right to reject the bill by a majority of the total number of deputies. The rejected bill is considered not passed and is returned to the initiator.

A bill approved by a majority of the total number of members of the Senate shall be submitted to the President for signature within ten days. If the Senate does not approve the bill as a whole or its individual articles, the bill is returned to the Mazhilis. At the same time, the Senate has the right to propose a new version of certain articles of the bill to the Mazhilis.

If the Senate has not reached a decision within sixty days, the bill is submitted to the President for his/her signature.

5. If the Mazhilis, by a majority of the total number of deputies, approve the wording of certain articles of the law proposed by the Senate, the law shall be deemed to have been adopted by the Mazhilis in a new version and approved by the Senate and shall be submitted to the President for signature within ten days.

If the Mazhilis, by the same majority of votes, object to the wording of certain articles of the law proposed by the Senate, and even if the Senate has not approved the law as a whole, the differences between the Chambers shall be settled by conciliation.

The version of the law prepared by the Conciliation Commission shall be considered by the Mazhilis and the Senate in the manner prescribed in paragraph 4 of this Article.

If the Mazhilis, by a majority of the votes of the total number of deputies in the Chamber, does not adopt the law in the wording proposed by the Conciliation Commission, the Mazhilis shall hold a second vote on the law in the wording previously adopted.

If in the second vote the Mazhilis confirms the previous decision by a two-thirds majority of the total number of deputies in the Chamber, the law shall be submitted to the President for signing within ten days.

If the law does not receive the stated majority of votes of the deputies of the Mazhilis, it shall be deemed not to have been adopted and shall be returned to the initiator.

5-1. Excluded by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 1 January 2023).

6. Bills providing for a decrease in state revenues or an increase in state expenditures may be submitted only upon a positive resolution of the Government of the Republic of Kazakhstan. Such a resolution shall not be required in the case of bills considered by the Mazhilis of the Parliament on the legislative initiative of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

7. If a bill submitted by the Government is not adopted, the Prime Minister shall have the right to raise a question of confidence in the Government at a joint session of the Chambers. The vote on this question shall be held no earlier than forty-eight hours after the motion of confidence has been tabled. If the motion of confidence is not carried by a majority of the total number of members of each Chamber, the bill shall be deemed to have been adopted without a vote. However, the Government may not exercise this right more than twice a year.

Section IX

Final and Transitional Provisions

Article 90

1. The Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan adopted by a republican referendum shall come into force on the day of official publication of the results of the referendum, with simultaneous termination of the previously adopted Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

2. The day of adoption of the Constitution by a republican referendum shall be declared a public holiday - the Day of the Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Article 91

1. Amendments and additions to the Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan may be introduced by a republican referendum, which shall be held by the decision of the President of the Republic, on his or her own initiative or on the proposal of the Parliament or the Government. Draft amendments and additions to the Constitution shall not be submitted to a republican referendum if the President decides to submit them to Parliament. In such a case, the decision of Parliament shall be taken in the manner prescribed by the Constitution. If the President of the Republic rejects the proposal of Parliament to submit amendments and additions to the Constitution to a republican referendum, Parliament shall have the right, by a majority of at least four-fifths of the total number of deputies in each Chamber of Parliament, to pass a law enacting such amendments and additions to the Constitution. In this case, the President of the Republic shall sign the law or submit it to a republican referendum, which shall be deemed valid if more than half of the citizens of the Republic eligible to vote in a republican referendum have taken part in the referendum. Amendments and additions to the Constitution submitted to a republican referendum shall be deemed adopted if more than half of the citizens who participated in the referendum in at least two-thirds of the regions, cities of republican importance and the capital voted in favour of them.

2. The independence of the State, the unity and territorial integrity of the Republic, the form of its government, the basic principles of the functioning of the Republic, established by the Constitution, the provisions that the President of the Republic shall be elected for a term of seven years and that the same person may not be elected President of the Republic more than once, shall remain unchanged.

3. Amendments and additions to the Constitution of the Republic shall be submitted to a republican referendum or to the consideration of the Parliament of the Republic in the presence of the opinion of the Constitutional Court on their compliance with the requirements established in paragraph 2 of this Article.

Footnote. See Resolution No. 13/2 of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 4 December 1998.

Footnote. Article 91 as amended by Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 284-I of 7 October 1998; No. 254-III of 21 May 2007 (in force from the date of its official publication); No. 51-VI of 10 March 2017 (in force from the date of its first official publication); of 8 June 2022 (entered into force on 8 June 2022); No. 142-VII of 17 September 2022 (in force from the date of its first official publication).

Article 92

1. Constitutional laws shall be adopted within one year after the Constitution comes into force. If laws defined as constitutional by the Constitution, or acts having the force of such laws, were adopted before the Constitution came into force, they shall be brought into conformity with the Constitution and shall be considered constitutional laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

2. Other laws mentioned in the Constitution shall be adopted in the order and within the terms established by the Parliament, but not later than within two years from the day the Constitution comes into force.

3. Decrees of the President of the Republic issued during the period of exercising additional powers in accordance with the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan "On Temporary Delegation of Additional Powers to the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan and Heads of Local Authorities" of 10 December 1993, which have the force of law, may be amended, supplemented or repealed only in the manner provided for amending, supplementing or repealing laws of the Republic. Decrees of the President of the Republic, issued during the period of exercising additional powers, on matters provided for in paragraphs 12-15, 18 and 20 of Article 64 of the Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan, adopted on 28 January 1993, shall not be subject to approval by the Parliament of the Republic.

4. The legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan in force at the time of the entry into force of the Constitution shall be applied to the extent that it does not contradict the Constitution and shall be brought into conformity with the Constitution within two years from the date of its adoption.

Footnote. See Resolution No. 8/2 of 15 June 2000 of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Article 93

In order to implement Article 7 of the Constitution, the Government, together with local representative and executive bodies, shall create all necessary organisational, material and technical conditions for free learning of the state language by all citizens of the Republic of Kazakhstan in accordance with a special law.

Article 94

1. The President of the Republic of Kazakhstan, elected in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan in force at the time of the coming into force of the Constitution, shall acquire the powers of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan established by the Constitution and shall exercise these powers for the period established by the decision of the Republican referendum held on 29 April 1995. With the consent of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan, the current term of office of the President of the Republic may be shortened by a decision of the Parliament of the Republic adopted at a joint session of its chambers by a majority of votes of the total number of deputies of each chamber. In this case, the Mazhilis of the Parliament shall order the election of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan within one month. The President of the Republic elected on the basis of these elections shall take the oath within one month from the day of the announcement of the results of the elections and shall exercise his or her powers until he assumes the office of the President of the Republic elected at the next presidential elections, which shall be held after seven years on the first Sunday of December.

2. The Vice-President of the Republic of Kazakhstan, elected in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan in force at the time the Constitution comes into force, shall exercise his or her powers until the end of the term for which he/she was elected.

Footnote. See Resolution No. 5 of the Constitutional Council of the Republic of Kazakhstan of 19 August 2005.

Footnote. Article 94 as amended by Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 284-І of 7 October 1998.
